Subject: Think It Over In Your Pretty Little Head

Ron & Preston - here is my 2 bits today complete with Buddy Holly. I am thinking about sending this out to all, what do think honestly? I am a little cautious with Stephanie working in a management position in the City of Seattle. But frankly those close to her in the city including her 2nd level agree with us. If I do send out should I remove Ron's last name and email? Thanks.
Jack

Dear WRIA17 & CAPR & WA Senators and Representatives and Enumclaw Herald and King County Journal:

I would like to amplify what Ron has so clearly and eloquently stated below in his email below and seven points. His points are worthy of THINKING IT OVER . I hope you like Buddy Holly it may help you wade through this rant. Turn up your sound.

How many times do the rural and urban property owners , the grass root organizations, associated businesses, civic organizations and all the people living in the country and working in the cities have to keep painting this picture for the city, county, state and federal government bodies? The environmental group think has so infested the government and society that they are blind to simple facts. They simply cannot and will not understand that the environmental movement has long since moved from any sense of need and balance to becoming some of the most radical, destructive and self promoting ideology today. And who would have believed that yester-years tree huggers now wield nearly 9 billion $ and have bought off at least half the politicians and government. <http://www.sovereignty.net/p/ngo/wealthy.htm>. One prays for this movement to become constipated.

Let us not feel sorry any longer for the spotted owl! It time for the government to set up special private property wilderness areas for exclusive USE of private property owners. We should elicit the help of our 1000 Friends in WA and CELP and Nature Conservancy and call Paul Allen and ask for a few hundred million to buy up and set aside our own land from the southern border to northern border, from the Cascades west to the Sound as a national preserve for endangered species of private property owners. We could petition both of our environmental loving senators and they would most assuredly get us on the endangered species farmers list. Once on this endangered list we would be protected from the likes of Ron Sims and his county council gang not too mention the Department of Ecology. People from the city could drive out on Sundays when it wasn't raining and we could all put on our bib overalls and go out and work the fields so they would feel good about preserving the way it use to be. THINK IT OVER IN YOUR PRETTY LITTLE HEADs.

When ideas grow into distorted ideology, when government adopts selfish one sided polices based on in vogue distortion, when the government and environmentalism become codependent and when the tide of taking come onto your land and into your house, its time to "THINK IT OVER...wouldn't you think? When WA State Executive Office, WA Senator Cantwell and Senator Murray and the WA DOE and King County Ron Sims and the King County DDES do not listen to reason and refuse to understand the basic environmental premises are flawed they become the source of the problem and not the solution.

e.g.. Then they hire more of their kind to perpetuate the myth. They claim to know better than the land owners how to be stewards of our land and our water. But lets all use the Best Available Science and try to make some common sense out of nonsense.

When a one judge majority on a court of nine especially on the U.S. Supreme Court or state Supreme Court can evoke laws to take away private property, you start to understand that we have become a different nation no longer a United States but more of a divided states divided between the big cities and the country. Even though our judicial system is based on the prevailing court majority decisions becoming the law of the land, the point is in the shift of thinking away from the constitution and more toward the big cities and sustaining development, UN, world courts takings. Even Enumclaw is grabbing up hundreds of acres outside of town and building housing tracts where two big farms used to be and mid schools where a horse boarding farm used to be. Maybe they got fair market value for their land and maybe it was a voluntary sale. I'll have think it over. What you are seeing now is the wide spread land grab by the cities and big environmentalist and the big developers. They want to grow but the rural land owners can't grow you see, that would be blight, unsightly and down right sprawl.

You have to ask yourself who would even want to take away a person's property rights away not too mention water rights and ability to build a home anywhere you want? Answering that simple question will tell you how embolden and distorted this type of environmental and political group think has become. It shows you how far this sustaining development taking has spread. When the high courts in large part takes property rights and the cities take private land through distortion of eminent domain and distortion of environmental cause then you have started to experience tyranny. When city and county council set about to further themselves by taking private occupied land to further the city over respecting individual privacy and constitutional rights as in New London you have to start paying attention to why your cities are creeping up to your back door. You definitely do not want to THINK IT OVER .

The majority of urban property owners do not even know what CAO means and if they do, it is simply something to do with clean air and clean water. Again the complete truth never gets told or understood or nobody cares or all of the above. That is why Ron Sims get voted in for the third time. Elected officials reflect the consciousness and thinking of the community. THINK IT OVER even though it may make you ill.

After you connect enough dots to the cities and to the environmentalist you will see a picture which you are experiencing right now. A picture that Ron Ewart has been writing and preaching about forever. The title of the picture is SUSTAINING DEVELOPMENT, SMART GROWTH, CONTROLLED GROWTH and it comes from the UNITED NATIONS. There is an Office of Sustaining Development in Washington DC and in many major city mayor offices including Seattle. The cities mission is to "rack em, stack em and pack em" at any cost even if that means taking away your private property rights, water rights, building rights, rights to roam and drive on highways and freeways, etc. The cities love to code you too death with unending over reaching codes, e.g. property enforcement codes, building codes, legal codes, privacy codes, driving codes and now don't forget smoking codes. Once you think it over you can easily see the insanity in the cities. We are moving into an age of a great rift between the cities and the country. Look at the red & blue national voting maps. The two live in their own world while the cities administer justice over both. THINK IT OVER BUT DONT BE SLOW....

What you have here is what Patrick Michaels (Research Professor of environmental sciences at UV & author of "Meltdown") calls a "paradigm-political" process. This is a positive feedback loop, e.g. a snow ball going down hill in wet snow. You have a government and environmental lobby and academia and even most embarrassing, scientific journals that perpetuate this urban myth of environmental fear and scarcity to perpetuate the funding and existence of themselves. When the power of the government becomes so pervasive that it is the major source of funding for many areas of research, especially environmental studies, then you can start to understand why large government organizations like WA Department of Ecology and DDES and elected offices such as our WA states governor office and our two Senators are part of the environmental myth and problem and not part of the solution. What should be the source of the solution has evolved into the source of the problem.

Recent election results here in King County and WA state although discouraging regarding the continued takings are not the total picture. Under the table of takings by the cities you see a new picture. A growing numbers of hundreds of property and water rights groups and other groups are fighting to take back all of their freedoms and liberties they have been loosing over the last 30 years. American are slow to react but we are sponge like. You can drip water or whatever fluid or brown matter you imagine on us for a long long time and then one day you start to see what is dripping in is gushing out. We are becoming saturated with too much nanny government, too much nanny tree hugging environmental sue happy groups like "1000 Friends/Enemies of Washington/FutureFear' and "CELP - Center for Environmental Law and Policy Perversion". Who has to take any time to decide an issue when you see someone from FutureFear or "CelpUSScrewThem" push another lawsuit over on the local property owners... I mean do we really even need to THINK IT OVER in this case?

Rural people want to be left alone. We have had it with the DOE, EPA, ESA, DDES, CAO, GMA and PBRS and Ron Sims and the rest of the bloated government planning and enforcement offices and those people who have nothing better to do than sit around and plan your future. No agency of the government or environmental lobby will be able to move one step forward any longer without all of the property and water rights groups and anyone who has an ounce of common sense descending upon them in mass. The age of environmental innocence is over. You don't have to think this over unless you are in the city maybe?

Another point to note is the obvious. We surely know that the majority in control in King County and Olympia reflect only the city side of this state not the country. The majority in this state and the corresponding big city counties reflect and vote for the distorted environmental group think including our two Senators and at least half the legislature into office. There is no balance in this state. This includes both parties who are primarily city oriented. Thus the great lose of our Steve Hammond. The city needs to stay in the city and not mess with our country. Think it over how nice that would be. The majority in this state live in the contiguous King, Snohomish, Pierce and Thurston counties. The majority represents primarily the city people and the government employees and those who live off of the government tit and the cities. Here is an "At-A-Glance" picture of the recent vote to repeal the insane gas tax that goes mostly to Seattle and does not help the WA State commuter or expand the freeways for all of us. This tax is not about helping all of us commute to work in the cities, its about only money primarily and disproportional for the cities,

THINK IT OVER and look at this map very carefully.

<http://www.vote.wa.gov/election/2005/general/measures.aspx?a=912>.

Don't think anymore, just pass this on to all your friends and call every government official and demand that the WA State and the counties get out of the country completely. Take some action yourself. Tell them you have discovered creeping blight in the country and is being caused by the government agencies, e.g. DOE and DDES. We need to split off King, Pierce, Snohomish and Thurston and combine them into one Government/union county called PIST. (using I in King -hopefully we won't have to pay the King Family several hundred thousand a year of our tax money for that?) Our children will ask us, why is that one big county called "pist". And we can tell them the story how we split the state up between the big city and the country. THINK IT OVER.

Oh and one last thought to think over.....we pay our government to do our bidding not to think for us. We think, they do. Nobody thinks in the government anymore unless we tell them too and then all we want is a "Yes Voter Sir" or a No Voter Sir". Those in the government do not need to think this over anymore. Anybody caught thinking during working hours in the government is automatically fired. If a government employee has a problem and needs to think, call a voter and let them do it. It will also be called CAO which will stand for CALL AN OTHER voter. The voters will THINK IT OVER for them. The government will just tend too their city and leave the country alone. THINK IT OVER this may be the answer we all have been looking for.

God Bless The United States

Subject: [wria17] Meeting, 10-10-2005

I had to leave at at 7:30 PM. It was a most engaging session. I came away with several take home messages

- 1/ The environmental activists will continue to pursue their agenda by promoting a limited supply of water.
- 2/ The DOE is not to be trusted, it too appears to operate on the pretense water is limited resource.
- 3/ The environmental "communty" is over represented in the legislative and agency processes.
- 4/ The Executive Branch of State Government is a large part of the problem, not a part of the solution
- 5/ The legislature will react only if they are forced to by public outcry
- 6/ Water is a property right
- 7/ Pressure must continue on DOE and elected officials

Something has gone seriously awry with this Court's interpretation of the Constitution. Though citizens are safe from the government in their homes, the homes themselves are not."
